WELCOME

We are pleased to bring you another exciting season packed full of top-quality live events! From side-splitting comedy to powerful plays, dynamic dance, and inspiring talks there really is something for everyone.

However, this season looks a little different. You may remember, RAAC (Reinforced Autoclaved Aerated Concrete) was found in the roof of the Key Theatre main auditorium in 2023. Luckily, Lindum Group were able to grant all our wishes and get us back open with a temporary solution that year, just in time for our 2023 pantomime - Aladdin!

But, once the panto magic was over, a permanent solution was always going to be required. We've been working hard behind the scenes with Peterborough City Council, venue hirers, visiting companies and more to put in place a planned closure - mitigating as much inconvenience to those that know and love our venue.

Lindum Group started this work on Monday 2nd June, and expect this to take around 16 weeks. We look forward to welcoming you back to our first show of the Autumn season - An Evening Without Kate Bush, on Thursday 9th October.

But wait - the show goes on!

While our main stage takes a well-deserved break, all other areas of our venue are still buzzing with activity:

Tour Studio Theatre is ready to host a fantastic lineup of events in a more intimate setting.

Windred Drama is continuing with their brilliant classes - including their ever-popular Summer School.

The Chalkboard café is open for treats, chats, and coffee-fuelled creativity.

Our friendly Box Office team is on hand to help you plan your next theatre adventure.

So whether it's theatre magic in the Studio, a bite at The Chalkboard, or a night out at the New Theatre - we're keeping the arts alive, loud, and fabulous all summer long. And trust us, when that main stage curtain rises again, it's going to be unforgettable.

On behalf of the Landmark Theatres team, we look forward to welcoming you!

STILL TO COME IN JUNE

PANTO PREPARATIONS IN FULL SWING

It may only be June, but preparations for this year's pantomime at the Key Theatre Jack and the Beanstalk are already well underway. The first draft of the script is complete, music composition is in progress, and casting has begun. That means some exciting announcements will be heading your way over the coming months!

This year's production promises to be a true giant of a pantomime. Set design and spectacular special effects are already in development, alongside designs for more than 60 costumes - some of which are among the most outrageous our resident Dame has ever worn!

At the Key, our aim each year is to make the pantomime bigger, bolder, and better than the year before. And that all starts with the script, I begin by simplifying the fairy or folk tale down to its core narrative and then reimagining it through a Peterborough lens, incorporating local themes that connect with today's audiences while staying faithful to pantomime tradition and the craft itself.

Once the story takes shape, the focus turns to the music which is an essential ingredient of the Key pantomime experience. We explore the tone, energy, and musical threads that will carry the show from start to finish. With the script in hand, the design process can also begin to build the world of the production, crafting a visual journey for each character and scene.

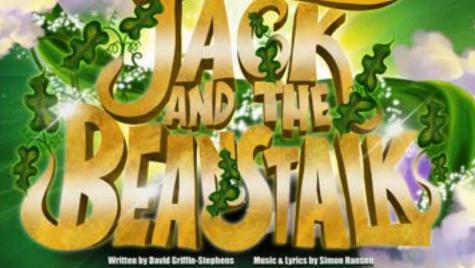

One of our biggest challenges this year? Fitting it all into the theatre! We're talking about a towering beanstalk, dancing cows, and possibly the largest giant ever seen on a stage. But rest assured - we'll make it work. I'm even trying to squeeze in a bulldozer!
